

God's Plan for All People

(the [really] short version)

There is a God who created us and loves us and wants us to love and please Him by following His rules (for our own good) or suffer the punishment of eternal separation from Him. Most of the Bible is spent showing us how following those rules is humanly impossible and that we need a better way. So He offered His Son Jesus to take on our punishment and His Spirit to give us a new life with the ability to please Him. We get the best life possible here on earth and for eternity, including a loving relationship with a God whose love for us shows us how to love others. The death and resurrection of Jesus proves He was God's son and is an example for us to die to our worldly lives and resurrect into a new life by His Spirit.

The story of Jesus pervades the entire Bible. Believe what you want about certain parts, but deny this central theme and you will miss out on God's perfect plan for your life, forever.
