How should I then love?

Relationship Principles

1. Guiding Principle - It's not about you. The hardest part of a loving relationship is dying to self.
2. And it's not about how they love you. It's about how you love them. Repeat...
3. Never use others as a measuring stick for your love. Compare only to how God would have you love.
4. Encourage them by reminding them of the strengths you appreciate in them.
5. Do not try to make them a "better" person by pointing out their shortcomings.
6. Never use their faults as an example to justify your own.
7. It's not necessary to justify yourself. You will be justified as you love.
8. Always view issues through their eyes.

Notes I made to myself for loving my wife.

S.A. Pierce

Thanksgiving 2009